To their Respective Charges After Their Vacations

LARGE CONGREGATIONS GREET

REV. DR. CUNNINGHAM, REV. DR. SOOY, AND REV. J. H. LITTELL SUNDAY MORNING-DR. SOOY'S DISCOURSE LAST NIGHT AR-GUED FOR ACTION MATHER THAN INDECTSION - AT THE OTHER CHURCHES,

Yesterday being the first Sunday in September, it was marked in the local churches by the return to several pulpits of pastors who had been away on their vacations, and each was greeted by a large congregation. The attendance at the churches was very good considering the high temperature, but the attendance was noticeably less at the evening services.

At the Fourth street M. E. church, the pastor, Rev. J. L. Sooy, D. D., preached both morning and evening, and last night delivered a practical discourse, which was, in effect, a plea for more decision among well wishers of religion. Dr. Sooy instanced Banlam as an example of the class he condemned—the men who were well wishers to religion but not doers of religion. In the church, said Dr. Sooy, are men who are not declaive or positive enough to come out square and bold on God's side, and he quoted Robert Hall's saying that "That man is God-less who had nothing to do with God's battle." It didn't do to wish well for the cause of religion if the wishers didn't work hard for the cause. The church and the world are in need of strong Chruistlan men and women, and not fence-straidlers— people whose epi-taphs read after their death that the deceased had no enemies in the world.

Dr. Sooy dián't believe in that kind of post-mortem praise. Men who died without an enemy never took a decisive stand for the right side. His other remarks were for an aggressive Christian manhood. The musical programme contained a solo by Mr. Louis Huseman, of Pittsburgh, an old Wheeling boy, who sustained his well earned reputation in a pleasing selection.

MR. LITTELL PREACHES.

Services Resumed Yesterday at United Presbyterian Church.

Rev. J. H Littell, pastor of the First Unked Presbyterian church, occupied his pulpit yesterday morning and ning, after a month's vacation, and his sermons were listened to by large congregations. Rev. Mr. Littell spent his racation at Xenia, O., and in points in Pennsylvania, and returned to Wheeling much improved in health. Yesterday morning he preached on a timely question. He spoke of the advancement of the kingdom of Christ, or the coming of Christ in this present the coming of Christ in this present, and the new responsibilities to be d by the American people dwing to result of the war, and its attendant uisitions of Hawaii, Porto Rico, etc. Littell laid attest on the problem nation must solve and claimed that ould be solved only by planting the pel among the prople of those operating the prople of th

FOOTBALL.

No sport in this section has suffered so much from the war as football. A this time a year ago the air was full of football talk, but the gridicon boys haven't wet begun to stir themselves, except in the case of the colleges, and at these institutions the outlook is not as bright for the popularity of the game as it might be. The champion Washington and Jefferson team, of Little ington and Jefferson team, of Lattle Washington, contributed most of its eleven to the Tenth Pennsylvania regiment, now at Manila, and with them out of the game football isn't being pushed very hard, though it is sure to come to the front now that the war is over. And there is no reason why the game should depend on the boys who are away.

F. Harris Yost, the great coach, was in Wheeling on Saturday, en route to Nebraska. He will coach the University of Nebraska team this fall, getting $1,000 for ten weeks' services. West Virginians naturally take pride in the climb of the Marion county athlete, and especially those who have followed his course since he started in at the State University in 1895 as a green hand. When Yost bought a football guide, and spent more time with it than with his law more time with it than with his la-books, he was made the victim of fre books, he was made the victim of frequent roastings, which didn't lessen when he began to board with the first paid coach the University secured. This coach, by the way, had too many kinks in his hair to suit, but Yost, nevertheless, was a close student. With the next coach, a few weeks later, Yost became a boon companion, and in a month, Yost, in his first season, became the star player, chiefly because he always kept "his eye on the ball."

kept "his eye on the ball."

The following summer, Yost, who has extensive oil interests, was found bucking oil men around the oil fields, and he nearly wore his own brother out by bucking him around the hillsides on their farm. His brother, however, hasn't become such a great player. One of Yost's notable achievements was playing his position, left tackle, with Lafayette college when it defeated the University of Pennsylvania, two Fears ago. Last season he coached the Ohio Wesleyan University team with wonderful success, and the trick of palming his off as a student was discovered too late by the University of Michigan team, which couldn't do better than a tie with the Ohio boys, especially with Yost, who was very much of the rapid-fire order. His geniality and fondness for football insures his success in Nebraska.

BOXING.

What promises to be a hot number will be the eight rounds next Thursday evening at Bridgeport between Kid Wanko and Tommy Cavanaugh. This bout will be for a decision and precedes bout will be for a decision and precedes the main event, which has for its stars Leslie Pearce and Jimmy Fogarty, who go twenty rounds or more. They are training faithfully for their contest, which may be put down as one worth a long journey, but Wanko and Cava-naugh should be a whole thing in them-seives, and in Phwadelphia and other office where no more than six rounds cities where no more than six rounds are allowed would be billed as a great attraction.

Oscar Gardner, accompanied by his manager, Jack Arthurs, left yesterday afternoon for New York for his twenty afternoon for New York for his twenty round contest Friday evening with Sam Bolen before the Lenox Athletic club. Bolen is a warm potato. They are to weigh in at 124 pounds at 3 p. m. the day of the contest. Gardner's next bat-tic some week from to-morrow evening at Louisville, Ky.—his long deferred contest with Jimmy Mrashadt. Gard-ner's activity is making a name for ner's activity is making a name fa him, and he could already show in museum as a globe trotter.
